"I would recommend the courses of Hyphen Projects to every young scientist willing to learn more about biotech & pharma business"

"Not only did I learn about different business models, I made long-lasting connections. The course assessed my entrepreneurial aptitude and gave me confidence in pursuing the start-up route."

"I was immediately impressed by the very high quality speakers on the programme. Since the lectures were held in a relatively small group, there was a lot of interaction and opportunity to ask questions and get advice."

Expand your insights in BioBusiness

Whether you are still in academia or already working in industry, this course will help you to reflect on the developments in the fast-changing life sciences industry and your place in it. The program will go into the trends and developments in the life science sector, give examples of emerging business models and discuss funding, IP and partnering strategies for life sciences companies. This knowledge will allow you to steer your career in such a way that it benefits the most from the changing landscape, no matter whether you are starting an own company, working in industry or in academia and contemplating a transition to industry.

After attending, you will leave this course with a certificate of attendance, extensive course materials providing useful information on how and where to steer your career and of course a broad network in the Life Sciences industry to make this happen!
